Abstract

The Norman Rockwell Fan Correspondence Collection is collected incoming fan correspondence sent to Norman Rockwell from 1922-1978. Beyond textual letters, the collection includes artwork created by fans, photographs of fans, and newspaper clippings sent by fans. As a collection of letters written to a seminal popular culture figure, this grouping of correspondence not only reflects Norman Rockwell as a celebrity but the iconic history of the "Saturday Evening Post." Rockwell created covers for the "Post" for nearly 60 years, making the man and the magazine's histories nearly inseparable. This collection of fan correspondence tells not only the history of a popular culture personality from a public perspective, but a recapitulation via admirers of the most widely circulated magazine of the time. Coming from a wide geographic scope, the correspondence shows the diversity of gender and age amongst Rockwell's fans. The letters often reflect the Saturday Evening Post covers, while elucidating personal experiences and microhistories of the author.

Biographical/Historical Note

Born in NYC in 1894, Norman Rockwell always wanted to be an artist. At the age of fourteen, Rockwell enrolled in art classes at the New York School of Art. In 1910, at the age of 16, he left high school to study at the National Academy of Design. He soon transferred to the Arts Student League, where he studied with Thomas Fogarty and George Bridgman. Fogarty's instruction in illustration prepared Rockwell for his first commercial commissions. From Bridgman, Rockwell learned the technical skills on which he relied throughout his long career.

Rockwell found successes early. He painted his first commission of four Christmas cards before his sixteenth birthday. While still in his teens, he was hired as art director for Boy's Life, the official publication of the Boy Scouts of America, and began a successful freelance career illustrating a variety of young peoples publications.

At age twenty- one, Rockwell and his family moved to New Rochelle, New York, a community whose residents included such famous illustrators as J.C. and Frank Leyendecker and Howard Chandler Christy. There, Rockwell set up a studio with cartoonist Clyde Forsythe and produced work for such magazines as Life, Literary Digest, and Country Gentleman. In 1916, the twenty-two year old painted his first cover for the Saturday Evening Post, the magazine considered by Rockwell to be the “greatest show window in America.” Over the next forty-seven years, 321 Rockwell covers appear on the cover of the Post. Also in 1916, Rockwell married Irene O’Connor, to be divorced in 1930.

Generally, the 1930s and 1940s are considered the most fruitful decades of Rockwell’s career. In 1930, he married school teacher, Mary Barstow. The couple had three sons: Jarvis, Thomas, and Peter. In 1939, the family moved to Arlington, Vermont and Rockwell’s work began to reflect, more consistently, small town American life.

Inspired by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt’s 1943 address to Congress, Rockwell painted the Four Freedoms paintings. Reproduced in four consecutive issues of the Saturday Evening Post, the pictures were accompanied by essays from contemporary writers. Entitled Freedom of Speech, Freedom to Worship, Freedom from Want, and Freedom from Fear proved to be enormously popular. The works toured the United States as an exhibition, jointly sponsored by the United States treasury and the Post, The sale of war bonds in conjunction with the exhibit raised more than 130 million for the war effort.

Scope and Content

The Norman Rockwell Correspondence Collection is divided into eight series: General Correspondence, Class Writing Projects, Newspaper Clippings and Oversize, Fan Envelopes- Oversize, Fan Objects, Periodicals, Pamphlets-books-Art Objects, and the Addendum, which is comprised mostly of loose attachments.

The Fan Correspondence was maintained by Norman Rockwell and several assistants. Unlike most celebrities, Norman Rockwell read and categorized much of his fan correspondence. In pencil, on the top of the page, Rockwell indicated for his assistant the type of response needed. Examples of his annotations include: "Thanks," "Special," "Love," "Idea," or underlining of text. Answered monthly, Rockwell scripted in pencil the date fan mail was read.

The collection is comprised of a wide variety of materials, including: correspondence, elementary school class writing projects sent to Rockwell, photographs, newspaper clippings, periodicals, and art created by Rockwell's fans.

What is at the heart of the collection are the original fan letters sent to Rockwell. The writers are from a wide geographical range: New York City, California, to India and Paris, France. Most of the correspondence are reactions to Saturday Evening Post covers. Covers that were popular with this collection's authors include: Saying Grace, Girl Returning from Camp, Hobo and Dog, the Willie Gillis series of covers, and the Four Freedoms.

Fans often sent photographs of themselves, family members, or friends, noting the image's "Rockwellian" nature. Rockwell inspired art, mostly pencil sketches, were sent by fans seeking Rockwell's approval or comments.

The General Fan Correspondence is organized by month and year, linking the letters to Saturday Evening Post covers.
