

NORMAN ROCKWELL MUSEUM

Photographic Services Fee Schedules

Norman Rockwell Museum (NRM) is a resource for high-quality images of the objects in its collections. It provides 8"x10" images scanned at 300dpi delivered over the internet (FTP). You may request custom sizes and resolutions for your order. The NRM reserves the right to evaluate each request. The NRM also reserves the right to charge fees and impose conditions above and beyond those listed in this document when deemed necessary.

No photographic material is available for purchase. All materials are rented for a pre-determined periods of time. Slide kits are available on CD Rom for rental by educators through the Education Department. Professional journalists may contact the Communications Department for information and slides. The Norman Rockwell Museum reserves the right to evaluate each request separately and to alter these fees according to the size and scope of the project.

Requests are processed in the order in which they are received. The length of time it takes to fill an order depends on its size, complexity, and whether copyright permission has been secured prior to the request being made. The processing of a rental agreement and invoice cannot begin until the Image Services Department of the Norman Rockwell Museum has received verification of copyright permission. Most orders are filled within 10 business days after all necessary paperwork has been received.
